European styling may have made Pride a leader in the ergonomic revolution, but it is continuous innovation that has kept it there. An expanded seating line includes both managerial task chair and stool configurations without compromising any of Pride's trademark adjustability. Seat heights adjust infinitely over a 4.75" or 10.25" range, respectively, while locking seat slides and lumbar supports set the seat depth and back height to accommodate users of all shapes and sizes.

Pride also boasts features for every environment. A forward seat tilt lock-out provides supplemental support for tasks requiring prolonged concentration, but a synchrotilt reclining mechanism makes contemplative work just as comfortable. Four arm choices (fixed, height-adjustable, pivoting, and height- and width-adjustable) allow individualization while maintaining aesthetic harmony. In addition, a more formal fully upholstered back or black poly shroud can be specified as aesthetic or durability needs dictate.

For the most punishing environments, consider Pride's intensive-use model. It may look identical to the standard use version, but stronger components set it apart. Glides increase stability in stationary applications, and a dual-density memory foam option maximizes comfort and durability for 24/7 operations. The intensive-use option is available on both the task chair and stool.

Regardless of your workplace demands, Pride is ready to exceed your expectations.

Pride Task Seating and Stools have standard back height lumbar adjustment, including 7 locking positions with 4" of adjustment.

Seat depth can easily be adjusted on all Pride chairs, allowing end users to customize the fit of their chair. (Seat depth is modified for the Pride stool).

Choose from fixed arms, height-adjustable t-arms, pivoting arm caps, height- and width-adjustable t-arms or a no arm option on any Pride chair.

Back angle adjustment allows the backrest to adjust 6 degrees forward and 10 degrees backward for a perfect fit.

Forward seat tilt goes from a locked +2 degrees to an unlocked -2 degrees. This feature, along with the waterfall seat front, eliminates stress to your legs and thighs. (Forward seat tilt is not available on stool).
